

“To Silicon Valley, to Boston, ‘Wisconn Valley’ is coming.”

— Terry Gou, Foxconn founder and chairman, touting the electronics giant’s plans in Wisconsin

BRIAN CASSELLA/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker, from left, President Donald Trump and Foxconn Technology Chairman Terry Gou prepare to break ground Thursday on Foxconn’s planned manufacturing site in Mount Pleasant, Wis.

Harley plans cloud Foxconn ceremony

At Wis. groundbreaking for $10 billion complex, Trump has harsh words about offshoring of jobs

BY LAUREN ZUMBACH | Chicago Tribune

MOUNT PLEASANT, Wis. — President Donald Trump on Thursday used a groundbreaking ceremony for Foxconn Technology Group’s Wisconsin plant to tout American manufacturing while warning Harley-Davidson to not “get cute with us.”

Foxconn’s planned $10 billion manufacturing complex in the southeastern Wisconsin town of Mount Pleasant is an example of the “exciting story playing out across the country,” Trump told a crowd of hundreds.

“That’s why this is so beautiful,” Trump said on a stage with signs reading “Made in Wisconsin USA” and “now hiring.”

But while Trump praised the Taiwanese electronics giant’s plans for a factory that will produce liquid crystal displays as “the eighth wonder of the world,” he had harsher words for another manufacturer, located just 25 miles north: Harley-Davidson. Earlier this week, the Milwaukee-based motorcycle manufacturer said it plans to shift some production overseas, a decision it attributed to the consequences of the president’s trade policies.

“Please build those beautiful motorcycles here in the USA again. Don’t get cute with us,” Trump said, warning, “Your customers won’t be happy if you don’t.”

Harley-Davidson has said its move was an attempt to avoid European Union tariffs imposed in response to Trump’s trade measures. The company said in a

Turn to Foxconn, Page 9

Village’s iconic bridge wrecked

Truck driver cited; Long Grove now must save again

BY ROBERT MCCOPPIN AND TODD SHIELDS
Chicago Tribune

Tourists were browsing knickknacks and inspecting antiques in the shops of Long Grove on Wednesday when a crashing sound shattered the quiet of the historical downtown.

What those who rushed into the street saw — that a truck had crashed into the top of the village’s covered bridge and driven completely through it — was more than just severe damage to a physical structure.

It was also the realization that serious harm was

JOHN KONSTANTARAS/FOR THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The one-lane bridge in Long Grove was recently designated a federal historic landmark.

done to the quaint community’s most recognizable and iconic symbol — and one whose entry into the National Register of Historic Places only a few days ago was celebrated as a designation that would help ensure the bridge’s future.

“This is the face of Long

Grove,” Ryan Messner, vice president of the Historic Downtown Long Grove Business Association, said of the bridge, which can be seen from his office. His group had backed a “save the bridge” campaign long before Wednesday’s crash. “It’s on every logo. This is the brand of the village. We started this process to get it named a landmark two years ago, so to me it’s very personal.”

The one-lane, 112-year-old bridge has long served as both a literal entrance to the village and a symbolic bridge to the earlier time

Turn to Bridge, Page 7

Shooter kills 5 in ‘targeted attack’ in Md.

Suspect in custody after rampage at Annapolis paper

BY KEVIN RECTOR AND NICHOLAS BOGEL-BURROUGHS
The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Five people were killed and at least two others were injured in a shooting Thursday at the Capital Gazette newspaper in Annapolis in what appeared to be one of the deadliest attacks on journalists in U.S. history, authorities said.

Police said the suspect, Jarrod W. Ramos, 38, used a shotgun in the afternoon attack and is in custody.

“This was a targeted attack on the Capital Gazette,” said Anne Arundel County Deputy police Chief William Krampf. “This person was prepared today to come in. He was prepared to shoot people.”

Ramos had a long-standing dispute with the newspaper, according to law enforcement sources familiar with the investigation. His dispute with the newspaper began in July 2011, when a columnist covered a criminal harassment case against him.

In 2012, Ramos brought a defamation lawsuit against the columnist and the paper’s former editor and publisher. In 2015, Maryland’s second-highest court upheld a ruling in favor of the Capital Gazette and a former reporter who were accused by Ramos of defamation.

Krampf said the shooter used canisters of smoke grenades when he entered the newspaper.

The gunman also mutilated his fingers in a possible effort to thwart identification, according to an official who was briefed on the investigation and spoke on condition of anonymity.

Turn to Shooter, Page 12

CHRIS SWEDA/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

After decades, the shuttered Uptown Theatre, once an opulent movie palace, is set to return to its 1925 glory.

Uptown Theatre set for restoration

$75M project could start as early as fall, take about 2 years

BY CHRIS JONES
Chicago Tribune

After 35 years of stuttering starts, empty promises, a court-ordered sale and off-reckless neglect, the 4,381-seat, 46,000-square-foot Uptown Theatre — once the gilded crown jewel of the Balaban & Katz theater chain, and among the most opulent and gorgeous movie palaces ever built in America — is finally to be restored to its 1925 glory.

In other words, what long has seemed impossible to dogged, devoted preservationists, nostalgists and the tireless volunteer group known as the Friends of the Uptown is finally happening on Chicago’s North Side. And an eye-popping $75 million has been pieced together and set aside for the restoration of a dangerously decayed and decrepit theater that was boarded up after a J. Geils Band concert on Dec. 19, 1981, leaving aging Chicagoans only with their memories of once seeing Bruce Springsteen, Bob Marley, Prince or the Grateful Dead inside its historic bones.

This is not just another plan for the 4816 N. Broadway flagship of the Uptown neighborhood, Mayor Rahm Emanuel insists. This time it’s for real. Assuming the plan passes the City Council and other regulatory hurdles, the restoration

Turn to Uptown, Page 8

Amazon sends Walgreens stock plummeting

Despite quarterly earnings that beat expectations, Walgreens’ shares sunk Thursday following news that Amazon is stepping into the pharmacy business. Business

KEVIN WINTER/GETTY

Naperville fest seeing change of pace pay off

“It was time to step out of our comfort zone,” Mary Hovenstine, marketing director for Ribfest, says of booking rapper Pitbull. “We said ‘OK! We’ll see what happens.’” Pitbull is scheduled to perform at Ribfest on Thursday.

On the Town

States poised to act on Roe as high court shifts

Seeing opportunity in a reshaped Supreme Court, several states with anti-abortion leadership are preparing to impose or revive abortion bans. Nation & World, Page 10

Tom Skilling’s forecast High 97 Low 81

Chicago Weather Center: Complete forecast on back page of A+E section

$2.50 city and suburbs, $3.00 elsewhere
171st year No. 180 © Chicago Tribune

7 49485 00001 2